VALLEY HIGHWAY

Big Delegation Wanted for the Conference at Hutchinson.

NEXT MONDAY IS THE DAY

Mayor, County Commissioners and Members of Commercial Club to Attend.

The mayor of Dodge City, the county commissioners and the commercial club are arranging for representatives at the Arkansas Valley Highway conference to be held at Hutchinson next Monday. Mayor Gluck will attend personally and has appointed L. J. Pettijohn, P. H. Bughrue, B. M. Murphy and Peter Motz as delegates from the city. The board of county commissioners, W. J. Davies, Nic Mayrath and Wm. C. O. Duncker, it is understood will all attend. The commercial club delegation, which it is desired to make as strong in numbers as possible, will be headed by Judge B. F. Milton and Judge Milton has been authorized to furnish credentials for as many members of the club as can be induced to go to Hutchinson. The commercial club has requested as representatives from that body Lieutenant Governor Fitzgerald, Karl Miller, P. H. Young, J. C. Erhard, W. T. Coolidge, G. M. Hoover, Dr. O. H. Simpson, Dr. C. A. Milton, W. Watson, A. G. Barnett, F. W. Tyler, T. J. Schall, R. M. Rath, H. A. Burnett, A. Russell, L. G. Grobely, T. A. Scates, C. M. Beeson, M. W. Sutton, G. L. Painter, L. L. Taylor, Dr. W. O. Thompson, G. B. Rose, Robert Vernon, Warren Brown, J. E. Reser, V. J. Tiefenbach, J. A. Arment, E. E. Smith, W. B. Miller and all others who can get away that day.

This conference is the beginning of a movement which will be in progress in Kansas for the next ten years. The building of the highway is being seriously contemplated by the town, counties and townships along the route from Hutchinson through Dodge City and on to the western state line. Such a highway built would have a network of good township roads leading to it from the north and south all along the line. By building a short stretch of road the townships north and south could connect with the big highway and have a road to their local market that would be worth a fortune to the various townships. This highway would be lined at certain seasons of the year by wide tired wagons hauling more than twice the loads now hauled to the markets. Many of them will no doubt be drawn by traction engines. Thus a farmer could sell and deliver his crop of wheat within a very few days' time, selling when the price was best. The highway will also bring a steady stream of travel through the country. The Kansans will make a summer trip to Colorado via this route in their automobiles. The land along the highway and for miles back on each side of it will be increased in value.

The present is an era of good road building, and an era when there is to be a general movement from the town to the farm. Farm life will be greatly improved when all of the farms are located on good roads. Distances will be shortened, and the preference of living in town which has always been noticeable in this country will disappear.

The conference at Hutchinson next Monday, is the one definite movement on foot in Kansas at this time. The territory to be crossed by the contemplated highway, the Arkansas Valley is sure to become the greatest agricultural district of the state. It will attain that end much quicker if the highway is built.

A government good roads man will be at the conference from Washington D. C. and the representatives at the conference will try to get the government interested in the movement. The state engineer will no doubt be present, and it will be a great meeting. It is hoped that Dodge City will have a very large delegation on hand at Hutchinson next Monday.

TODD STILL ACCURATE

Former Weather Observer Here Has Them Taking Notice of Forecasts in New York.

George T. Todd, a former weather observer at Dodge City is just as big a man at his present post as he was here when he used to send word to the ranches to round up their long-horns and get ready for a blizzard. The Albany Journal of January 18 in an editorial comment says:

"Our own weather dispenser Todd, whom the call of duty separated from his beloved Kansas some years ago, since which time he has become a respected and popular citizen of Albany, deserves credit for the accuracy—we are almost tempted to say, exasperating accuracy—of his predictions since the beginning of this year.

"When Mr. Todd said 'colder,' the temperature promptly went down; when he said, 'about zero to-night,' zero it was; when he foretold rising temperature, the mercury obligingly climbed; when he said once more, 'colder,' it slid down again; when he predicted snow, there was snowing to do within 24 hours. Just now, the snow or rain intermezzo is happening just as he foretold it. Almost it seemed as if the weather was at his beck and call; but we will not assume that, for then it would be in order to chide him for having furnished so much excessive winteriness. Rather, he shall have credit for exact observations and calculations, which defied the erratic storm centers and areas of depression, and other things of that sort that have a habit of turning predictions topsy-turvy when the forecaster turns his head for a moment.

"If now, when the season for agreeable weather comes, Mr. Todd will as accurately predict seasonable conditions, he may expect a delegation of grateful citizens to visit him in his watch tower and bestow upon him a medal, or a loving cup, or a laurel wreath, or some other fitting token of appreciation and esteem."

H. JUNEAU

"Faust" Coming.

Will be the Attraction at Opera House Here on Tuesday Evening Feb. 1.

Martin Brothers have billed a fine production of "Faust" at the opera house here on February 1. A Des Moines paper says regarding the company which will appear here: "Olg. Verne White's version of Goethe's 'Faust' was spectacularly staged at the Grand yesterday. While the production is obviously intended to appeal to a popular taste, Goethe loses nothing by last night's presentation of the drama, which was careful and conscientious in every way. The scenic embellishments and the free rendering of Goethe's lines certainly do not detract from the deeper interest of the piece as far as the average theatergoer might be concerned. The presenting company is really first class. Mr. Frederick J. Wilson's interpretation of the role of Mephisto is natural and quite devoid of conscious effort. He touches the comedy elements of the part with a subtleness, accentuating the earlionic cheerfulness of the character and merely suggesting the sinister motives of Satan's mundane activities. He has a splendidly modulated voice, a natural physical grace and a most agreeable personality. His performance was tranquil and realized, without ostentation, the specious wickedness of Mephisto.

The Marguerite of Miss Adele Hurley was tender, womanly and refreshingly real. Her scenes with Faust especially, were carried off with a quiet and affecting sincerity. Mr. Chas. E. Bird played the part of Faust with excellent representation. Miss Jane Carter contributed an interesting Dame Martha. The rest of the company is well cast. The production with its electrical effects and all its as elaborate as any production of "Faust" that has been witnessed in Des Moines.

HE CAN'T HELP IT

Chalk Beeson's Tight-Laced Haughty Manner Has Caused Comment

After being known here for half a life time as just a plain westerner, it has been hinted around on the quiet for the past two weeks that Chalk Beeson has been getting stiff and upish. He has even been asked to his face, if he is getting haughty in his old age. Chalk could have given an explanation which would have shamed his accusers into an abject apology, but that explanation would have been more or less humiliating, and he has hesitated to make it. This paper is not so sensitive about the matter as Chalk is, and does not mind telling the facts. All of these wrong impressions about Chalk are easily cleared away. Three weeks ago he had a slight accident in which he had two of his ribs broken. The surgeon who attended him instructed that he have his body bandaged and that the bandage be stout and tight until the ribs had time to heal. When he considered taking a cinch on himself, the first thing Chalk thought of for the purpose was a double girth, saddle, but as that would be too heavy and so great a part of it useless, he cast about for another idea and the happy thought of a corset struck him. And there you are. He has been going about wearing a tight corset ever since, and is continually possessed with a wild desire to pitch and buck like a broncho wearing its first double girth saddle.
